

A Hoosier on The Road

KENNY LOUCKS is missing the basketball but having Florida fun. From Tampa he adds: "Today I sat with Ownie Bush and John Rigney (White Sox VP) and watched the first drill under a hot sun. Loaned Ownie some 'Sea and Ski' for his nose and forehead. Andy Cohen, our new manager, wore uniform No. 36.

"In '48 I was with Al Lopez in Texas spring training, his first year with Indianapolis. I was with him in Tuscon, Ariz., his first year with Cleveland, so I felt I should be with him his first day with the White Sox . . . Watched Al and Birdie Tebbetts and Dan Topping play golf yesterday just after I flew in from Houston, Tex. Saw Freddie and Paula Wampler there . . . Remember in '48 Bush gave Lopez No. 10. That has been his number in Cleveland. Now he has No. 4 because the Sox wanted Sherm Lollar to keep No. 10.

Commissioner L. V. Phillips and Assistant Commissioner Robert Hinshaw didn't sit in their offices during the tournament. L.V. saw games at Center Grove, Indianapolis, Noblesville and Greenfield and wound up at the Indianapolis final. Hinshaw saw Indianapolis, Center Grove, Noblesville, Zionsville and Rushville.

Joe Adams went to Noblesville for the sectional. He saw the Millers win for the first time since '29 with a 29-9 last quarter. The final count was 58-54 but during the rush to the front Coach Glen R. Harper was as calm as a sack of flour. He just kept telling his boys to play for good shots. When it was all over, Noblesville, having played to a packed house in its two-year-old 3,200-seat hall, built a bonfire on "the Commons" downtown.

The man at the loud speaker gave the multitude a false alarm thrill at Noblesville Saturday afternoon when he announced Garfield had just eliminated Gerstmeyer. In a real-hot basketball town before real-hot fans it wouldn't have gone over—they would have known the teams couldn't meet until the final game.
