ANDY'S HANDY WITH WORDS

HOLLYWOOD, Fla.—Recent managers of the Indianapolis Indians indulged in various forms of relaxation, but none approached the educational value as much as the hobby of Andy Cohen.

Al Lopez used to spend his idle hours sitting in movie houses. Don Gutteridge relaxed by taking long walks. Birdie Tebbets spent his off hours writing verbose reports on players in the league, and Kerby Farrell amused himself by writing lineup combinations on anything that was available.

Now comes Cohen with a new approach to relaxation and one that has earned him the title of "walking dictionary." Andy is an expert on crossword puzzles and word games. None in camp can match him on the latter and whenever he's challenged on some word, he's nearly always upheld by the dictionary.

Between gulps of breakfast, Andy is fitting in a crossword, not to be confused with cross words, and after day's end he'll challenge anyone in camp on making the most words from any one, common or capital. Some expensive challenges have taught those who compete with him to respect his knowledge.

Occasionally, Andy will utter some word that will tempt his listeners to challenge. The other day, for example, Andy wiped his sweating brow and remarked: "Gee, I'm transpiring."

"You mean perspiring, don't you?" challenged Coach Johnny Hutchings.

Andy left it there and the next morning at breakfast he challenged anyone to a wager, big or small, that he was correct. No one seemed willing to be sucked in and finally Andy, gloating over his conquest, said:

"Well, just look the word up in the dictionary. You'll find that it means to perspire; 'sweat.'"

Sure enough, there it was, but only after Glen Miller, farm director of the Chicago White Sox, asked:

"What is this, a baseball camp or a dictionary camp?"

Where's the Ump?

THE FACES of Cohen and Hutchings were somewhat red when they returned from Pompano Beach night before last. They permitted the bus to take off without Dave Carrabba, the American Association umpire assigned to the Indianapolis camp. Carrabba finally hitch-hiked a ride back to Hollywood.

Still compelled to use a lineup laced with lower-echelon players, the Indians nosed out a veteran Buffalo club, 5-4, in 11 innings yesterday when Gene Martin singled with the bases loaded. Luke Easter, former Cleveland and Indianapolis first baseman, tied the score in the ninth with a home run.

"The thing that impressed me about that game," said Cohen, "is that those kids did a darn good job against a vet club with considerably more experience."

In a brief pregame ceremony, a beautiful teen-ager threw out the first ball. She was Doty May, a native of Evansville, Ind., who has been crowned queen of the Fiesta Tropicals. Doty, a former student at Bosse High School in Evansville, moved here last August and is a senior in South Hollywood High. She will ride in the queen's float tomorrow night during a parade that will include 15 bands and numerous floats. More than 75,000 are expected to witness the festivities.

THE Indianapolis club has made its final offer to Outfielder Jim Delsing, according to General Manager Ray Johnston.

"We have gone as far as we can," said Johnston. "The next move is up to Delsing. Either he plays for what we offered, or he goes on the suspended list."

Johnston will attend a league meeting in Sanford tomorrow and return to Indianapolis where he hopes to push the advance ticket sales to 100 grand.

"We have an excellent chance to reach that goal," said Ray. "We have several big purchases on the fire and I wouldn't be surprised to see us hit the 100,000 mark."
