

2-Inning Stint Wins Lefty Trip Home With Tribe

By LESTER KOELLING, News Sportswriter

HOLLYWOOD, Fla.—Being left-handed has its advantages and for Roolfo (Chico) Arias it means a trip north with the Indianapolis baseball club Saturday night.

How long he will stay depends entirely on the Cuban southpaw who speaks very little English. He "made" the team by pitching only two innings yesterday in the Tribe's 6-5 victory over Toronto.

But in those two innings, Arias showed enough to convince Tribe brass that he might come in handy for relief work. It was a tossup between Arias and one of several other hurlers. And the fact that Arias is left-handed helped sway the decision. The Indians have only one other southpaw—Don Rudolph. Arias was 8-5 at Colorado Springs last year.

Koelling

When Manager Andy Cohen read off his lineup to newsmen yesterday, he emphasized the words "Don Prohovich at third base."

No one interrupted to ask why and when Cohen finished reading off the lineup, he asked, without pausing, "Well why don't you fellows ask why Prohovich's at third."

Well, why?
"I want to see whether he can play there," replied Cohen, "and you fellows can figure out the rest yourselves."

That was easy. The Indians are going to get another shortstop from somewhere, they're not going to get Tom Brown from the Chicago, so if Prohovich makes the club, it will have to be at third.

Cohen later admitted that a deal was pending for a shortstop, and he added "it doesn't look like we're going to get Brown, and I'm not sure that we want him. I understand he has a bad arm."

Prohovich had his troubles at third yesterday, although escaping without an error. But he had one of his better days at the plate, rapping three hits, one a long two-bagger that sent over two runs. The winning hit, however, was delivered by Rookie Dick Means, whose single in the eighth scored Sam Hairston.

Pleasing Manager Cohen more than anything else was the manner in which the Indians bounced back after spotting Toronto 5 runs in the first inning. One of the reasons lies in this comment by one of the players: "What a pleasure to play for a guy like Andy. You want to win more for him than yourself."

Manager Cohen became the target for considerable ribbing when he appeared in Bermuda shorts yesterday, and he's still looking for the instigator of a fun-loving message of reprimand he found in his mail box. The note, claiming to be from "officials of the Indianapolis club, players, Chicago White Sox officials and newsmen" said:

"We officially protest your wearing of Bermuda shorts and your knee-length stockings in view of the fact that no justice is being exhibited. Such demoralizing attire, on top of three consecutive losses, is no way to play."

"Therefore, the players and officials of the Indianapolis club hereby fine you the sum of $10, payable to the president of the Indianapolis baseball club."

"We kindly request that you desist wearing shorts immediately so that no further disciplinary action will be necessary."

Tribe President Ownie Bush had the most fun with Cohen.

"You're a disgrace," kidded Bush, "and besides, you're bow-legged."
