HOLLYWOOD, Fla. —

Spring training almost half finished, Manager Joe Hauser of the Duluth-Superior White Sox yesterday looked back with satisfaction on what had transpired and ahead with keen anticipation to the vital last 10 days before heading north.

"Things have gone along every bit as well as could be expected," the veteran pilot said following yesterday's snappy morning drill.

"Believe it or not, things are beginning to take shape. We don't have much of a roster on paper, but we're getting an increasingly better line on what we hope to have.

BUSY SLATE

"Next week will tell the tale. We hope to be able to play exhibition games almost every day now, and that's where we'll really see what these boys can do," he said.

Hauser and Manager George Noga of Dubuque, who have combined their squads into one unit, turned their infielders loose for brief infield drill yesterday. It was the first time these boys had worked out in such a session this spring and they were like a group of caged tigers turned loose. The noise they made and the pep they showed were amazing.

Manager Andy Cohen of Indianapolis, former Eau Claire skipper, was standing by waiting to take the field with his club for an exhibition game with Toronto.

He strolled over to where Hauser was standing near first base and said, "doesn't it make you feel good to hear the chatter those kids can give you, Joe? sort of makes you feel young again, doesn't it?"

Regardless of how young he might have felt, Hauser didn't feel youthful enough to give his charges Sunday off. He's calling them out again this morning for more practice and more conditioning.

ESCAPE INJURIES

Most of the kinks have been worked out and the boys are in fair shape. Fortunately, no injuries marred the first week in camp however, as Hauser said, this coming week will be the vital one for the club remaining in camp. Cohen took his Indians out of here by plane last night. They open their season Tuesday.

With Indianapolis gone and with Colorado Springs and Davenport due to go on the same day the Twisox leave, it's getting closer and closer to cutting time for the former two clubs. Rumors are floating around camp that there may be some important roster changes at tonight's meeting of the camp staff, with just 10 days left here, it's important that the managers assemble some sort of nucleus on which to work.

Hauser is confident he'll know
