

Homer, Triple, Single Snap Win Strings

Before Thursday night's game at Metropolitan stadium, Neil Chrisley, Indianapolis' new leftfielder, observed: "I didn't get to play enough with Washington. My timing is off."

Then Chrisley, who was that "lefthanded hitting outfielder" Rosy Ryan tried in vain for a month to get for Minneapolis this spring, went out and walloped a home run, a triple and a single, to bat in four runs and single-handedly snap a four-game Miller string 5-4.

"I guess I suddenly got a little of it back," he winked in the Indianapolis clubhouse after the Indians had pulled out of a tense ninth inning with their fourth straight win.

And Chrisley's new-found timing in his second game with the Tribe left a somewhat puzzled Minneapolis pitcher in the other dressing room—Gordon Jones.

"I can't remember Chrisley giving me a lot of trouble when he was with Louisville last year," Jones said plumbly. "I beat them four times. He hit a fast ball away, a fast ball inside and a curve, all first pitches."

But Jones could see a gleam of brightness in the situation even in defeat. "I hate to lose," he declared, "but I think I'm started in the right direction. I thought I had good stuff and was getting the ball where I wanted it better than last Sunday in Denver when I won. Still you aren't going to win when somebody hits you like Chrisley."

DESPITE the one-man batting show, it took a lot of ninth-inning maneuvering by Managers Andy Cohen and Red Davis to get the game into the book as win No. 4 for Barry Latman.

The youngster led 5-3 going into the ninth but with Davis using three pinch hitters and a pinch runner he had to have help from George Spencer and Tom Flanigan. The latter, a lefthander, came in to fan Bill Taylor on a called third strike for the final out.

"That was a good curve Flanigan fanned Taylor on," Cohen observed. "I wanted to see the kid (Latman) finish. He was still strong but the tension got him."

AND DAVIS said: "Looks like I might shakeup the lineup a bit now. I'd have had Jake (Jenkins) up there for Taylor in the ninth if he'd been available."

But Jenkins, victim of a severe sinus attack, was out of uniform and probably will be for another couple of days.

Jack Tobin provided a good share of the Miller punch with two singles, a double and two walks for a perfect night. "A couple of them were 'flying quail,'" the veteran admitted. But they drove in the first two runs.

The third came in the eighth inning on Taylor's first home run—over the right field fence.

Jones was removed when the Indians picked up their fifth run in the sixth and V. Bert Clarke came on to throttle the Tribe the rest of the way.

Pete Burnside will face the Indians' Jim McDonald at 8:15 tonight.
