

Cohen Already Toast of Denver

By BOB BEEBE
Minneapolis Star Staff Writer

Andy Cohen has been Denver's baseball manager less than two days but already he is the toast of the town.

That's the word Ed Doherty, American Association president brought with him as he arrived in Minneapolis to speak at the testimonial dinner for Rosy Ryan at the Elks club tonight.

"Signing Andy was just about the most popular move Bob Howsam (Denver owner) ever made," Doherty declared. "Cohen was a great favorite when he managed Denver in the Western league and the fans are happy to have him. Everyone I talked to before I left town said, 'Andy's back; that's great.'

"It's okay with the Yankees, too. In fact Lee MacPhail suggested it. Out at the meetings it looked like Andy was going to manage Colorado Springs after losing his job at Indianapolis, but I understand now the deal was closed there. At any rate, Denver is pleased with him and Ralph Houk has a fine opportunity as Yankee coach after three years with the Bears."

Doherty also had some more optimistic dope on the Louisville situation, and notes the possibility that George Kell, major league veteran might be the Colonel manager in 1958.

"Louisville is all pepped up over the Baltimore tieup and they are talking about trying to get Kell to manage," Doherty said. "George has a bad back and probably won't be able to play another season for the Orioles. If he feels he can't the Colonels have a good chance of getting him."

Doherty will be one of several speakers who will help honor Rosy and Mrs. Ryan tonight. The affair is a sell-out.

MILLERS OPEN TICKET SALE

The "new" Minneapolis Millers will launch their 1958 ticket-selling campaign Friday when $5 grandstand ticket books go on sale at Billy and Marty's, 609 Marquette ave., and at Metropolitan stadium.

The $5 books of five tickets each represent a saving of 20 per cent rather than the 10 per cent of recent years, general manager Tommy Thomas points out. The reason, of course, is the increase in the general admission price from $1.10 to $1.25.
