Guess who defeated defending National Collegiate Athletic Association champion Arizona by scores of 8-3 and 11-6 Saturday in a college doubleheader?

Here are a few hints. First off, this team had lost 19 straight games to the powerful Wildcats and had previously won only seven of 66 games in their series which dates back to 1920.

Second, the last time the two teams met, Arizona prevailed by embarrassing scores in Tucson of 27-5, 10-8 and 15-5.

If your answer was the University of Texas at El Paso, chalk up a few points in your favor. If you failed to answer the question correctly, don't be too ashamed. Not too many other people would have thought UTEP could ever beat Arizona either, much less twice in the same afternoon.

It happened though, in plain view of one of the largest crowds to watch the Miners this year — an estimated 150 people at Dudley Field.

But the noise generated from the stands and UTEP's dugout made up for all the people who missed the game.

"Enthusiasm supreme," said Miner Coach Andy Cohen as pandemonium overtook UTEP's side of the field. "I told you they'd surprise some people and they showed it this series that we could play against any team in the nation."

UTEP forewarned Arizona of its capabilities Friday when the Wildcats pushed across two runs in the ninth inning to nip the Miners 2-1.

"We were kind of down after yesterday," said UTEP third baseman-catcher Jim Bradford who towering homer deep to left-center field in the eighth inning of the nightcap seemed to put the icing on the cake. "God smiled on us today. In the first game, we weren't loose but after we scored a couple of runs, fire was in everybody's eyes."

Arizona jumped on the Miners in the opener for two runs in the second followed by a Steve Anson solo homer for UTEP an inning later.

After the Wildcats upped the score to 3-1 in the fourth, UTEP tied it in the fifth on Orlando Cordova's two-run triple and then exploded for a five-run rally an inning later after two men were out.

Singles by Terry Dillingham and Keith Dwinell followed by an Arizona error loaded the bases. They remained full after Anson's single scored one run.

Back-to-back two-run hits by Bob Alsop and Orlando Cordova completed the onslaught in the first game. Cordova had four runs batted in for the game while Dwinell was a perfect three-for-three at the plate.
