

Miners in Sag' Campaign

SPRING PACKAGE—Jim Bowden, assistant athletic director of U.T. El Paso, holds up the first team core for spring sports. The tickets, good for admission to basketball games and track meets, are $15. The 1969-70 season may have reversed the pattern for the window games of the regular campaign.

They meet the Colorado State University Rams tomorrow night at the Coliseum in the final home basketball game of the season and next Tuesday they complete the regular campaign in a game with Arizona State at Tempe.

THEY LED for most of their game against Seattle University last Saturday night. This hasn't been unusual in past games. The Miners have been from-runners in a number of them. But they sagged when they collapsed in the fourth quarter.

Against Seattle it was different. The Chiefs tried the score with six minutes left and lost. It looked like they were on a victory surge.

But the Miners came back and made a strong finish to win 84-62.

Don Haskins pointed out one reason the Miners have fallen in late game sags. He pointed out that mistakes have killed the Miners in some of the closing misadventures.

"WE MADE some mistakes against Seattle in the closing minutes, but fortunately they didn't hurt," he said.

Other probable reasons for the Miners' fade-out may have been fatigue and lack of pace.

Anyway, they hope to beat Colorado State on a second or third effort tomorrow night.

Shelby Merrill, Texas Aggie coach, and Gene Gibson, outgoing Texas Tech coach, were pulled apart by the referee in a Southwest Conference game.

The officials in one Western Athletic Conference game called three or four timeouts just to let the tempers of fans and players cool off.

Press Maravich of Louisiana State has been named the "most inflammatory" coach in the Southwest Conference, and his son who plays for him, Pete, is not a model of deportment. He got a warning from the SEC committee and had to be restrained from socking it to the referee after the fifth personal had been blown against him.

Poultry Exhibitions

SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE fans have gone for poultry products. In one game, a shower of turkey legs (it didn't say who made the diagnosis of chicken eggs vs. turkey legs) came down on the floor. In another SWC game, a white chicken was thrown into the floor.

The Kentucky student rooting section chanted: "Go to hell, referee, go to hell!" An athletic official of the school finally got the students to switch to something else.

In a game at College Station, Ronnie Price of the Texas Aggies (who had the game) went up for a lay-up. He was hit in mid-air by Tommy Friedman of Baylor. A flagrant foul was called on Friedman who then was ejected by a crowd of Texas Aggie fans and knocked to the floor. Baylor sources claimed Aggie football players did the attacking. Gene Sealing, Aggie football coach, claimed the football players were trying to clear the floor of spectators and break up the fight.

At the Coliseum, the whole New Mexico bench stood up and shouted that somebody had thrown ice on the floor and pelted to the spot. A crew of officials and attendants with towels went out and looked intently in the area for some time but couldn't even find a wet spot on the floor.

Stormy Wyo.-CSU Game

AFTER HIS Wyoming Cowboys had been beaten at Colorado State in a game that ended with two seconds still left on the clock, Bill Stramington, the coach, said, "If Colorado State weren't in the Western Athletic Conference, we'd end our athletic relations with this game."

Stramington, bitterly claiming that a last second foul call against one of his players enabled New Mexico to win at the buzzer, was challenged by Bob King of New Mexico.

"We lost to you at Wyoming on even a worse call," said King, "and I'll trade lines with you to prove it."

Gibson, the Tech coach, said after a game: "We didn't lose. The officials stole it." The SWC can't do much to him, for that remark. He hit them way out anyway.

Ned Walk of Arizona State said the newspapers helped cause the battle royals that sprung up in the ASU-New Mexico game last Saturday by reminding everyone: "This is big time basketball, come out!"

Vern Beutner, Phoenix sports writer, said: "If this is big time basketball, come out!"

Still there isn't as much violence in basketball as there is in a good many other sports in this world.

Utes, B-Y Road Tested

By JAMES BAPIS
Last night's game between the Utah and Brigham Young front runners in the upcoming Western Athletic Conference, exposed their shaky lead in the hazards of road play tonight.

The Utes, winners of only one road game this year, met second place Wyoming at Laramie and the Cowboys against collared-necked New Mexico at Albuquerque.

"WE HAVE NO illusions about how tough it's going to be on the road," Utah coach Jack Gardner said. "We're going to win before we get off the bus."

Utah, which completed its home campaign last Saturday

Face CSU In Final Home Tilt

U.T. El Paso's Miners were scheduled to meet the Colorado State Rams tomorrow night at the Coliseum in the final home basketball game of the season and next Tuesday they complete the regular campaign in a game with Arizona State at Tempe.

THEY LED for most of their game against Seattle University last Saturday night. This hasn't been unusual in past games. The Miners have been from-runners in a number of them. But they sagged when they collapsed in the fourth quarter.

Against Seattle it was different. The Chiefs tried the score with six minutes left and lost. It looked like they were on a victory surge.

But the Miners came back and made a strong finish to win 84-62.

Don Haskins pointed out one reason the Miners have fallen in late game sags. He pointed out that mistakes have killed the Miners in some of the closing misadventures.

"WE MADE some mistakes against Seattle in the closing minutes, but fortunately they didn't hurt," he said.

Other probable reasons for the Miners' fade-out may have been fatigue and lack of pace.

Anyway, they hope to beat Colorado State on a second or third effort tomorrow night.

Shelby Merrill, Texas Aggie coach, and Gene Gibson, outgoing Texas Tech coach, were pulled apart by the referee in a Southwest Conference game.

The officials in one Western Athletic Conference game called three or four timeouts just to let the tempers of fans and players cool off.

Press Maravich of Louisiana State has been named the "most inflammatory" coach in the Southwest Conference, and his son who plays for him, Pete, is not a model of deportment. He got a warning from the SEC committee and had to be restrained from socking it to the referee after the fifth personal had been blown against him.

Poultry Exhibitions

SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE fans have gone for poultry products. In one game, a shower of turkey legs (it didn't say who made the diagnosis of chicken eggs vs. turkey legs) came down on the floor. In another SWC game, a white chicken was thrown into the floor.

The Kentucky student rooting section chanted: "Go to hell, referee, go to hell!" An athletic official of the school finally got the students to switch to something else.

In a game at College Station, Ronnie Price of the Texas Aggies (who had the game) went up for a lay-up. He was hit in mid-air by Tommy Friedman of Baylor. A flagrant foul was called on Friedman who then was ejected by a crowd of Texas Aggie fans and knocked to the floor. Baylor sources claimed Aggie football players did the attacking. Gene Sealing, Aggie football coach, claimed the football players were trying to clear the floor of spectators and break up the fight.

At the Coliseum, the whole New Mexico bench stood up and shouted that somebody had thrown ice on the floor and pelted to the spot. A crew of officials and attendants with towels went out and looked intently in the area for some time but couldn't even find a wet spot on the floor.

Stormy Wyo.-CSU Game

AFTER HIS Wyoming Cowboys had been beaten at Colorado State in a game that ended with two seconds still left on the clock, Bill Stramington, the coach, said, "If Colorado State weren't in the Western Athletic Conference, we'd end our athletic relations with this game."

Stramington, bitterly claiming that a last second foul call against one of his players enabled New Mexico to win at the buzzer, was challenged by Bob King of New Mexico.

"We lost to you at Wyoming on even a worse call," said King, "and I'll trade lines with you to prove it."

Gibson, the Tech coach, said after a game: "We didn't lose. The officials stole it." The SWC can't do much to him, for that remark. He hit them way out anyway.

Ned Walk of Arizona State said the newspapers helped cause the battle royals that sprung up in the ASU-New Mexico game last Saturday by reminding everyone: "This is big time basketball, come out!"

Vern Beutner, Phoenix sports writer, said: "If this is big time basketball, come out!"

Still there isn't as much violence in basketball as there is in a good many other sports in this world.

Utes, B-Y Road Tested

By JAMES BAPIS
Last night's game between the Utah and Brigham Young front runners in the upcoming Western Athletic Conference, exposed their shaky lead in the hazards of road play tonight.

The Utes, winners of only one road game this year, met second place Wyoming at Laramie and the Cowboys against collared-necked New Mexico at Albuquerque.

"WE HAVE NO illusions about how tough it's going to be on the road," Utah coach Jack Gardner said. "We're going to win before we get off the bus."

Utah, which completed its home campaign last Saturday

Game Is Cut Short

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—A melee between players, spectators and officials, which began when a player received his fifth foul and swung at a referee, last night forced an early end to the game between Dayton and Morehead (Ky.).

The trouble began when driving Kenny May of Dayton collided with pursuing Willie Jackson and both fell to the floor near the Flyers' backboards in the jammed field-house.

JACKSON was whistled out of the game with his fifth foul in the second half, but instead swung at an official. The Dayton bench erupted and headed for the fight and a spectator joined the fray, striking Don Sullivan, Ohio Valley conference official. Others then joined in. The game was called with 4:32 left.

"The incident in the corner, when the spectator hit Sullivan, prompted our halting action," Bob Smith, a Southeast Conference official working the game, said. "We could control the players, but we were afraid if this sort of thing flared up again, we would have a real problem."

IT WASN'T known if any of the players involved in the fracas would face disciplinary action.

The fieldhouse was packed to an official capacity of 900 with an unknown number of players and officials properly. It isn't that the university has not tried to provide protection. We had 25 marshals, policemen, 13 ushers and six city policemen at the game, but it could have been that they were not strategically located."

DAYTON athletic director Thomas J. Fretrick applauded the calling of the game. "I endorse the action," he said. "It was the fault of the players and officials working the game, but it could have been that they were not strategically located."

DAYTON's Fretrick also called upon the players and officials to be fair. "We have a good game tomorrow and a double effort Saturday," he said. "We will have a good game tomorrow and a double effort Saturday."

Competition begins at 8 p.m. today at the Coliseum. Miners will advance to the state finals at Fort Worth March 7, 8 and 9.

Golden Gloves

Title Bout

FLYWEIGHT
Baron (Ira) Chavez vs. Rocky Hernandez (Ira) Chavez

BANTAMWEIGHT
Baron (Ira) Chavez vs. Rocky Hernandez (Ira) Chavez

WELTERWEIGHT
Baron (Ira) Chavez vs. Rocky Hernandez (Ira) Chavez

MIDDLEWEIGHT
Baron (Ira) Chavez vs. Rocky Hernandez (Ira) Chavez

HEAVYWEIGHT
Baron (Ira) Chavez vs. Rocky Hernandez (Ira) Chavez

Ex-Sun Kings Are Kinged By Rigney

HOLIVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—The California Angels said that slugger Rich Richman has come in terms and will report to the American League team's training camp here Saturday.

Bob Rigney, who has also agreed to terms, also has agreed to terms, also has agreed to terms.

The Angels manager had particular praise for J. M. Spencer, but added that Tom Seaver, Jarvis Tatum and Jay Johnstone were batting well.

The two rookie pitchers were Greg Washburn and Lloyd Allen.

Basketball

WEST

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

LIU 21, St. Peter's 20

ONLY UTE LEFTY—Larry Currie is the only left handed hitter U.T. El Paso Miners have in baseball. He'll play first base for Andy Cohen's team which opens its season against Albuquerque University at Doolley Field tomorrow.

Miners Open Season—

Cohen Studies His Pitching Choices

With a herd of promising pitchers on hand, it could be anyone's guess as to who coach Andy Cohen will use when the Texas Miners open their baseball season tomorrow and Saturday.

The Miners face the Albuquerque Dons in a single game tomorrow and a double effort Saturday. Administered on the special spring package ticket, now sponsored by the school's ROTC group, is recommended.

One of Cohen's possible starters, no doubt, will be Lynn Hunt, a stylish southpaw who has been the ace of the Miners' staff for two years.

Cohen CAN also call upon such vets as Jesse Lujan, who has pitched for the Miners since 1966, and Larry Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.

Currie, who has pitched for the Miners since 1967, is a left-handed pitcher who has pitched for the Miners since 1967.