Lose to ASU--

Largest Crowd See Miners

TEMPE, ARIZ. — Andy Cohen's U.T. El Paso Miners had tasted play beneath the watchful eyes of 3000 baseball fans today when they dropped their second shutout of the season. They lost to the Arizona State Sun Devils 5-0, last night.

But nevertheless, Cohen's Miners set their sights on sole possession of first place in the Southern Division of the WAC. If Cohen could sweep today's twin-bill they would hold a one game lead over the Sun Devils, who took first with the win over the Miners.

ASU IS SITTING on top of a 3-1 record while the Miners are tied for second with New Mexico University at 2-2.

Cohen called the difference in the game the mound performance of ASU pitcher Larry Gura. "He held us to four hits and struck out 13 of our batters," Cohen said. He added, "this is the best pitcher we have faced so far this season."

The Miners looked as though they were going to get off the ground in grand fashion in the first inning when they had men on first and second with no one out. But Gura hurled his way out of the jam letting them die there.

"WE COULDN'T get a man past second after that," Cohen said.

Harry Milner started for the Miners and hurled what Cohen called a game that would have won any other time. "He was working well," Cohen said. "But he let a couple of bad pitches in there for homers."

John Dolinsek collected two Arizona State homers.

The crowd last night was the largest ever to see the Miners play a baseball game.
