

Cohen Thinks About 1970

Coach Andy Cohen had already begun to think about rebuilding his U.T. El Paso Miner baseball team today after losing "five key players to graduation.

Cohen will lose catcher Ron Hix, third basemen Danny Blanco, pitchers Lynn Hunt and Terry Witt and left fielder Mike Ward.

COHEN SAID, "I'm looking for a better season next year and I am hoping for some better pitching. Ernie Carreon will return and should give us some relief in the pitching department along with Marc Bombard."

Cohen's nine ended the season Saturday in Tucson against the Arizona Wildcats with a split twin-bill 3-2 and 4-0.

The Miners won the opener behind the pitching of Harry Milner and the bat of Rick Butler. "Milner pitched the full game, but was a little wild. In the bottom of the ninth he walked the first two before getting the side out," Cohen said.

"BUTLER hit a 417 goot line drive over the centerfield fence."

In the second game Hunt also pitched some fine ball Cohen said, but some sloppy fielding and leaving too many men on base when we needed to score made the difference.

"In the fourth and fifth innings we had three men on base with no outs and couldn't score. When we would get a chance to score, Leon Hooten would get tough."

COHEN SAID, "The Arizona people treated us real nice. When the series was over Arizona Coach Frank Sancet came and congratulated us on fine series. He said it was three close games."

Cohen summed the year up like this, "We had four outstanding games and at times I was pleased with club. The inexperience would really show up in the Western Athletic Conference games though."

Fans Vote Babe Top NY Yankee

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Yankee fans across the country still consider Babe Ruth the "greatest Yankee of them all."

The home run hero of the 1920s and 1930s was a runaway choice as "greatest Yankee ever" in a poll of 20,000 fans.

Ruth got 60 per cent of the Yankee total and recently-retired Mickey Mantle was second with 25 per cent. Fans also voted for their teams' all-time eight starters, best right-handed and left-handed pitchers, and greatest ever.

THE GLAMOROUS Yankee outfield, as expected, consisted of Ruth, Joe DiMaggio and Mantle. Although Mantle played center field, he was named to left field in the all-time Yankee team.

Pitchers on the all-time team were right-hander Red Ruffing and left-hander Whitey Ford. Bill Dickey was the catcher. The remainder of the squad consisted of Lou Gehrig at first base, Tony Lazzeri at second, Red Rolfe at third base and shortstop Phil Rizzuto.

Gehrig received the highest percentage of votes for a single position — 91 per cent for first base. Ruth had 83 per cent of the vote for right field.

Runnersup in the pitchers poll were right-hander Allie Reynolds and lefthander Vernon (Lefty) Gomez.
