

Miners Host Highlands

University of Texas at El Paso's Miners are hoping for good weather Friday while hosting New Mexico Highlands in a 1 p.m. doubleheader.

"We're so tired of bad weather," exclaimed Miner Coach Andy Cohen. "It would sure be nice to have a nice day. We haven't played in warm weather since before we went to Lubbock to play Texas Tech a few weeks ago."

Bob Knox is slated to start for U.T. El Paso in the opener while Cohen is undecided upon his second starter. "I may come back with Ron Wrobel," he said. "Wrobel didn't pitch much the other day and he needs the work. We need to start getting ready for conference play which starts next weekend against Arizona in Tucson."

A doubtful starter is second baseman Art Bravo who was injured in Wednesday's first game against New Mexico State. "Art was completing a double play at second and the Aggie runner did what was expected of him," said Cohen. "He tried to break up the play and in the process, Bravo was injured."

Cohen hasn't decided who'll start at second although he said the choice is between Alan Morris and Dave Patt.

New Mexico Highlands and the Miners will engage in another twin bill at 1 p.m. Saturday.
