

Miners Face Sun Devils

By MARK LEIBSON

University of Texas at El Paso baseball coach Andy Cohen knows Arizona State University's potential and that's why the Miner skipper is hoping only for a competitive series.

Riding a nine-game Western Athletic Conference losing streak, U.T. El Paso journeyed to Tempe, Ariz., where it will take on the Sun Devils in a three-game series starting with a single game at 8 p.m. (EP time) Friday.

"I just hope we give them a battle," Cohen stated as his team loaded a bus in front of Memorial Gymnasium for the 500-plus mile trip to Tempe. "ASU is a great team and it would be surprising if we beat them."

Following the Miner's final road trip, U.T. El Paso will return to El Paso for three-game blocks against Arizona's Wildcats and the University of New Mexico on consecutive weekends.

The Miners were given some added relief when it was learned that right-hander Dan Modlinski's arm had responded to treatment. "He thinks his arm will be OK," said Cohen, "but I don't know how much he can pitch. Moe threw a couple of days ago and he might be able to see some relief work for us."

"My arm feels pretty good," added the burly Chicago native who pitched a no-hitter the first game of the season against Texas Tech's Red Raiders at Dudley Field. "I won't start a game up there, but I should see some relief work."

Not making the trip is south paw Mike Hilton who has been ill the past week.

Friday's pitching assignment will go to Jeff Hogan. The right hander owns a 1-2 record with a 5.67 earned run average. Roy Stringer (1-4) will start one of Saturday's doubleheaders while Cohen is undecided as to his second starting hurler.

Cohen showed pleasure with Glenn Villarreal's hitting in batting practice the last week. "He's starting to meet the ball real well lately. Glenn is looking more like himself," praised the Miner mentor. "Terry Dillingham was in a little bit of a slump in New Mexico last week but in practice, he has seemed to regain his eye."

Joey Pennies continues to pace the Miners in the hitting department with a .346 average. The centerfielder has 37 hits and 24 runs scored, both of which are team leaders. He also leads his teammates in stolen bases with six.

Outfielder Steve Dau continues to improve his average to .343 while Villarreal rounds out the heavy hitters with a .302 mark. Villarreal's 10 doubles is a team high.

The Miners are batting .265 as a team while their opponents are ripping the cover off the ball at a .286 clip. U.T. El Paso pitchers have allowed only 11 home runs compared to 15 for the Miners. Villarreal leads that department with four while Pennies, Dillingham and catcher Joe Dehn each have three.
