

Arizona Wins In 11 Innings

Miners Give 'Cats A Scare

So close, yet so far.

Facing the powerful Arizona Wildcats for the fourth time this season, the University of Texas at El Paso put forth its best effort at breaking a 12-game Western Athletic Conference baseball slump.

Although Coach Andy Cohen's Miners were able to score a dozen runs, Arizona scored more as it took the Wildcats 11 innings to nip the Miners 15-12 at Dudley Field Friday.

"We really hit them today," commented Cohen after his Miners dropped their WAC mark to 0-13 while AU increased its conference record to 10-3 to keep the Wildcat hopes of catching Arizona State University alive. "It's too bad we couldn't hold Arizona's hitters."

Arizona was probably the most surprised team in the park Friday as U.T. El Paso jumped out to a 6-2 advantage after only two innings of play.

Glenn Villarreal, who collected six runs batted in for the afternoon, blasted a home run deep to left-center field after Art Bravo had doubled and Bob Alsop walked to leadoff the contest.

Powerful Steve Powers helped the Wildcats tally two in the second with a towering homer to right but the Miners added a trio of runs in the second.

Keith Rushing, Joe Dehn, Dave Nance and Bravo rapped consecutive singles and Villarreal rapped a sacrifice fly to center to account for the runs.

Suddenly, Arizona's bats began clicking and after six innings, AU held a 11-6 advantage.

Cohen's Miners never relinquished their hopes as Bravo, who led all hitters with four singles and a double, singled to lead off the seventh, Alsop also singled and Villarreal sent both runners home with a double to right.

Roy Stringer reached first on a fielder's choice as Villarreal was caught in a rundown between second and third. But an interference call against Arizona allowed Villarreal to return to second.

After one out, Terry Dillingham singled Villarreal home and Stringer followed when Keith Rushing's grounder to Don Hassen at third was kicked by Hassen for an error.

Arizona established a two-run lead in the top of the eighth. Acting as though the game was the deciding World Series contest, U. T. El Paso scored once in the eighth when Louie Llamas singled, moved to second on a passed ball and scored two outs later on Joey Pennies single.

Down by one run entering the ninth, the Miners not only tied the game but almost won it.

With one away, Dehn walked and moved to second on Power's wild pitch past catcher Robert Woodside. Powers proceeded to strike out Nance for the second out but old reliable, Art Bravo, tapped a single over second base as Dehn raced home.

On the play, Bravo went to second as the throw from centerfield went to home. Llamas, already two-for-two as a substitute for Alsop in left, was intentionally walked.

Needing only a single to capture the contest, the Miners were hampered when Villarreal, who would have been the next batter, was sent to the showers by the umpire.

"I can't believe he kicked me out of the game," said Villarreal. "All I said to him was that he was a turkey for calling a few bad pitches."

So, instead of Villarreal coming to the plate, Dave Morris was forced into action and the little right-hander hit a lazy fly to right forcing the game into extra frames.

U.T. El Paso had a chance in the 10th when Stringer led off the frame with a single up the middle.

Instead of going for the sacrifice bunt in hopes of sending Stringer to second with only one out, Cohen flashed the hit sign to Pennies with no outs and the left-handed hitting Pennies flied to left. Dillingham also flew out and Keith Rushing struck out to end the small threat.

Asked why he did not attempt the sacrifice, Cohen said, "If it had worked, Arizona would probably have walked Dillingham."

As it turned out, the game was sent into the 11th where Arizona finally broke loose.

With two outs, Miner reliever Stringer allowed a double to Pete VanHorne, intentionally walked Powers and then handed Bill Simpson first base after working a 3-2 count.

As the bases became loaded, Stringer worked a full count to Woodside before the husky catcher slashed a game-winning three-run double to left-center field.

Woodside's hit was his fifth of the day and the three RBIs tied Woodside with Villarreal for game honors of six runs batted in apiece.

A small free-for-all resulted after the game. The altercation first involved base umpire Joe Cerkevich and a critical fan and later several members of the U.T. El Paso team.

Both Arizona and the Miners return to Dudley Field Saturday for a doubleheader. The first game is slated for 1 p.m.

Ali To Fight Bugner

The latest concerning Muhammad Ali's proposed fight with Englishman Joe Bugner is that the pair will meet in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia on June 30. That, any way, was the word from promoter tinju Dunia Sendirian Berhad Friday. Another promoter of the fight, abu Mansor Basir, said everything had been cleared for the bout to be held and circuit this season. Races July 11-13 will feature the Six Hours of Endurance competition, counting toward the World Championship for Manufacturers. The U. S. Grand Prix will also be held Oct. 5 at the track.
