Local Boat Drivers Advised: 'Get Right with Water Safety'

By SANDY BARR

BOATING accidents in Middle Tennessee have not been numerous in recent years, but they have been no less tragic for the victims.

Now, at the beginning of the season, is the time to think about safety afloat—not in two or three months when you suddenly find yourself splashing through wind-whipped chop without a life preserver and perhaps with an arm or leg injured in a boat collision.

Outboards Involved
The Water Safety congress in Nashville reports that the majority of boating deaths in Tennessee involve outboard boats. This is an indictment of outboards as a type of boat that can cause problems out there. But it is a strong condemnation of outboard skippers who frequently cause accidents because of ignorance of either the rules of the road or the basic principles of seamanship.

Frédéric Haeckel, Southern Jewry, weight king, puts his belt on the "Purple Phantom" in a water-skiing battle against Judo Jack Terry, former masked Purple Phantom.

CG Offers Data

The Coast Guard issues a pamphlet titled "Motorboat Safety" which includes not only the equipment you should have on board your boat but also many safety tips to increase your enjoyment of boating and lists of other publications the CG offers covering legal requirements for aboard pleasure boats in detail.

Both these groups are primarily civilian organizations, much the same as the civil air patrol, and have no military or paramilitary activities. The latter group has assumed full responsibility for public education in boating and seamanship.

In Cumberland Loop

GALLATIN. Tenn. — The Junior All-Star team, Sept. 17 will sponsor the local baseball team entries in the Cumberland Valley baseball ball league again this year.

Arthur (Foxy) Fitzgerald, veteran manager will direct the club again this season.

The team will bring practice

inbound power, there are a number of publications available that will tell you how to have fun afloat while being safe.

Perhaps the outstanding of these is Chapman's "Piloting, Navigation, and Seamanship of the Coast," the boatman's "bible." This book, used by the power squadrons as a text in their three month training course, can be purchased at ZBart's Book store

Church street for about $6.
Other publications are on hand
at the Nashville public library, notably a new book by Hank Weiland Bowman, probably the state's premier beating writer today.

There is no excuse for ignorance about any more than ignorance of the highway is excusable.
