

3,000 Expected Here For Denver Exhibition

A crowd of 3,000 baseball fans is anticipated for tonight's exhibition game between the Denver Bears of the American Assn., and the first-place Fargo-Moorhead Twins of the Northern League, scheduled at Barnett Field at 8.

The demand for reserved box seats indicates a big turnout, with weather a determining factor.

The forecast indicated light showers late today, possibly after the game, with light summer clothing uncomfortable.

Manager Ken Silvestri planned to catch a portion of the game for the Twins. He planned to platoon his pitching, but had made no decision by noon as to how or who would work.

Manager Andy Cohen and his Bears arrived here at 7:30 a. m. from Denver in a private plane. The Bears were quartered at the FM Hotel and plan to fly to St. Paul early Tuesday.

Cohen plans to platoon his pitching, but had made no choices.

Zeke Bella, Denver first baseman, out for the season, will not be with the Bears.

The Twins also were short one regular, Tut Thublin, third baseman, who had been used in the outfield because of a sore arm. Thublin suffered a bad sprain of his left leg chasing a fly ball Sunday afternoon.

Regular Northern League prices prevail for the game.
