

ANDY COHEN

Andy Cohen Slated For Dinner Here

By EUGENE FITZGERALD

Andy Cohen, who sent more than 100 Northern League baseball players on their way to higher classification circuits than any other pilot, four of whom are still in the majors, has been added to the panel for the second annual Fargo Eagles baseball dinner on Tuesday, Feb. 4.

The dinner will be held at the Eagles Home.

Peter MacArthur, general chairman, said Cohen would join Joe McDermott, area scout for the New York Yankees, and Ken Silvestri, 1958 manager of the Fargo-Moorhead Twins of the Northern League.

Pete Bradbury of Aberdeen, new president of the Northern League, is among others expected to be seated at the head table for the dinner.

Other baseball notables also are scheduled, but the committee in charge is unable to make definite announcements at this time.

Cohen, now manager of the Denver team in the American Assn., a Yankee farm system affiliate, succeeds Ralph Houk, who goes to the parent club as a coach.

It was whispered that the Yankees may be grooming Houk, a former catcher, for Casey Stengel's post when the New York pilot decides to retire.

Actually, Cohen has been a top candidate for a major league managerial job. He was second when Bobby Bragan was picked by the Pittsburgh Pirates. At the time Cohen was manager of the Pittsburgh club's New Orleans affiliate.

Cohen was manager of the Indianapolis club of the American Assn. last season, White Sox-sponsored.

Cohen will be at Denver for his seventh season. He was manager of the Class A Western League team there, affiliated with the Boston Braves, for six campaigns.

For three seasons, 1948 through 1950, Cohen, a former infielder with the New York Giants and the Minneapolis Millers, was manager at Eau Claire.

His 1948 team finished third. In 1949, his Bears, as Eau Claire teams were known then, although affiliated with the Boston Braves, won the pennant. In 1950 Eau Claire finished second.

Bill Bruton, an outfielder, and Bob Trowbridge, a pitcher, both now with Milwaukee, ran 1-2 in the Polar loop rookie poll. Harry Hanebrink, an infielder, also on the Milwaukee roster, played under Cohen at Eau Claire.

Chuck Tanner, an outfielder at Cincinnati, also played at Eau Claire with Cohen as pilot.

Cohen sent up a number of other players who had brief trials in the majors.

However, he sent up players while in the Pittsburgh system.

Cards were mailed Friday to those who purchased tickets for the 1957 dinner. They will have first choice at 1958 tickets, but must make their reservations before noon Saturday.

Ken Blackman, general manager of the Twins, said the F-M club would train at Hattiesburg, Miss., opening about April 1.

It had been published in The Sporting News that the Yankees might go to Panama City, Fla., because the Hattiesburg area was being groomed for a recreation ground.

Also at Hattiesburg will be Greensboro, N. C., of the Class B Carolina League and Auburn, N. Y., of the Class D New York-Pennsylvania League.
