MISSES NO HITTER—Baltimore rookie southpaw Don Ferrarese is reaching high in the dressing room after just missing baseball immortality. He blanked the Yankees with no hits until the ninth inning when Andy Cohen led off with an infield hit. The young hurler, starting his second major league game, was touched for another single but managed to shut out New York, 1 to 0, for the Yanks' first whitewash in 97 games. Ferrarese also drove in the game's only run.
