

THE BULLPEN

By Lester Koelling

OWNIE'S ALWAYS TRYING

It has been said repeatedly that Ownie Bush, president of the Indianapolis Indians, is pulling all strings to find players that could help the Tribe to stay in the first division.

In verification of that, Rosy Ryan, general manager of the Minneapolis Millers, who meet the Indians in a twin bill tonight, recently said "That Bush is calling everybody in North America for a proven Triple-A pitcher. And he won't stop until he finds one."

Another pointing out the relentless efforts of the little man in seeking strength for the Indians is Ted McGrew, an old buddy who now is scouting for the Milwaukee Braves.

"Gosh, how that little guy hates to lose," McGrew said here the other night. "He's been after me to find him a pitcher. He keeps asking for one of the 'extra' pitchers on the Wichita club (a Milwaukee farm). I'll say one thing, you'll never accuse Donie of not tryin'."

With one more experienced hurler, Manager Andy Cohen is confident that he can keep the Indians in the race.

"Our pitching just has to get better," said Andy after the double loss in Louisville Thursday night. "Our hitting just can't carry the club all the time. The pitching has to come up with some good games, too."

Two veterans, Al Papai and Tony Ponce, will be entrusted with the pitching chores in tonight's double-header, starting at 6:30. The fireworks display, scheduled for last night when rain forced postponement of the twin bill, will be offered tonight. A single game tomorrow afternoon will close out the Minneapolis series.

The Millers, holding a 3-2 edge over the Indians this season, are expected to start two southpaws against the Tribe—Gene Bearden, the pitching hero of Cleveland's 1948 pennant winners, and Vibert Clarke, who was with Louisville last season.

"The Indians haven't had too much trouble with southpaws this season, the lefties showing only five victories and two full-route games in 11 starts.
