

Andy Cohen's 'Cripples' Just Keep Winning 'Em

By FRANK WILSON

Not too long ago Indianapolis conducted a highly successful campaign to raise funds for new hospital facilities, and Methodist Hospital was one of the recipients of largesse.

If the Indianapolis Indians aren't careful Methodist will have to conduct another campaign for funds, this time for the "Andy Cohen Wing," and, when completed, it may be filled with Tribesmen.

The weekend was almost tragic for the Tribe, beset by injuries through most of the season. But the tragedy was in the injury line, not the won-lost columns, for the Indians took two of three from the Minneapolis Millers, and thus the series, 4-1, which acted as a prelude to the All-Star game tonight.

Manager Cohen's ragamuffins, resembling more a patch-work quilt than a baseball team, closed the series yesterday with a 5-4 victory in regulation time when it looked like extra innings might be needed. Saturday night the Tribe split a double-header, winning the first, 3-2, before bowing, 12-5, in the second.

Added to the injury list yesterday was Second Baseman Don Prohovich, victim of a spiking by Miller Orlando Cepeda, who upset the Tribesman with a vicious body block in breaking up a double play. Prohovich needed 10 stitches to close the wound around the Achilles tendon. He was taken to Methodist.

Earlier, Jose Valdivieso got hit in the head for the second time in two games. Yesterday's blow was a pitched ball to the side of the head by Miller Jim Constable. After hurried first aid he continued in the game.

Cepeda was also hit by a pitched ball, one of Barry Latman's servings. He upset Prohovich immediately after that event, and some hot words flew to and from the Millers' bench on that occasion.

Saturday night Charley Williams was taken to Methodist with a severe concussion, Jim Delsing was out of action with stomach trouble, and Vince Garcia aggravated an old spike wound. Williams was released from the hospital yesterday and should be ready Wednesday. Delsing needs more X-rays to determine his condition, and Garcia sat out yesterday's contest in the grandstand.

The Tribe victory yesterday got close to an old-fashioned "brush-back brawl" as it progressed, all pitchers coming close, in addition to the pair of hit batsmen.

Latman, who doled out only two hits through the first seven innings, gave up four to the Millers in the eighth, when they scored a pair of runs, and finally gave way to Tom Flanigan in the ninth. Two runs scored then, and both were charged to Latman, Flanigan getting Andre Rodgers on a sacrifice fly and Cepeda on an infield play.

The Tribe had put together two-run clusters in the fourth and sixth innings, two of Sam Hairston's three doubles playing big parts. Hairston had a perfect day at bat, four-for-four.

After the Millers had tied it in the ninth, the Tribe made quick work of Reliever Fred Rodriguez. Sem Mele, Neil Chrisley and John Romano hit successive singles, and the winning run came across.
