Tribe War Whoops Sound Like Old Times Again

LOUISVILLE—Let's take a peak into the Indianapolis clubhouse. As a rule, it's a place of decorum, seldom lending itself to a lavish display of exuberance.

But not so yesterday. The Indians had just come from behind for the 21st time this season to score a 9-4 victory over the Colonels (their 17th triumph in the last 24 games) and the tumult and shouting supplied a strange contrast to the more familiar serenity.

There was general praise for everyone, but singled out for special attention were George Spencer, Ted Beard, Sam Mele and Charley Williams. Spencer, who hurled the last four innings in the Tribe's 14-3 rout Saturday night, picked up Cloyd Boyer in the fifth yesterday and pocketed his sixth victory on Mele's grand-slam pinch-homer.

"If Spencer's arm holds out, we'll win this thing yet," said a voice from a corner of the comfy clubhouse.

"Yeah, but we'll have to give George a little rest," replied Manager Andy Cohen, "so you pitchers better go all the way for a couple of games."

"Might as well let him pitch, 'cause he'll be throwing anyway," chimed in another voice.

"No more batting practice, George," added Cohen.

"That's the only way I can stay in the groove," replied Spencer, whose ambition this season is twofold: Lead the league in earned-run average and beat Steve Gerkin's 1947 record with Minneapolis of 85 games.

Spencer's outing yesterday was his 47th, which is exactly half the total number of games played this season by the Tribe. If he should continue that ratio, he will wind up with 77 appearances, six short of the record. His earned-run average is 3.41 and that will have to be stepped down while his appearances are stepped up for him to reach his goals.

"Hey, Sam, how many pinch grand-slamers does that make for you?" asked a bystander.

"Must be the first," came back the soft and vague answer. "Don't recall any others. I hit one off Denny Galehouse once, but I don't think that was pinch-hitting."

It was Mele's second grand-slammer in 10 days for the Indians, the other coming against Gene Bearden of Minneapolis during a 12-1 rout in Indianapolis.

"How about that Beard?" someone asked. Well, how about him? All he did was hit two homers, a single, a sacrifice fly, steal a base and make several sparkling catches. Not bad for a 36-year-old.

"How many hits today, Charlie?" the needling bystander asked Williams. The answer was a smile and three raised fingers.

"That's two now and you promised three, so you have only one more to go," prompted the bystander, referring to Charley's 380-foot homer.

"I'll hit some more," came back the soft answer, but his voice raised somewhat when it was jokingly suggested that the pitch he hit must have been a "cripple."

"It was like H---," roared Charley. "It was a --- good curve ball, and you know it."

And so it went. A bunch of Indians revelling in their recently-found confidence, spirit and desire.

"My problem now is to keep them from becoming contented and overconfident," said Manager Cohen. "I hope they have learned their lesson. Last time we got to the first division the boys seemed to let down and it took them a long time to get back on their feet."
