Andy Cohen Is Fired as Tribe Skipper

By LESTER KOELLING

The release of Andy Cohen as manager of the Indianapolis Indians was announced today by Tribe President Ownie Bush.

No indication of a new manager, or the time of his selection, was given by Bush, who has been attending an organization meeting of the White Sox in Chicago. Bush's action in firing Cohen, a personal friend, was approved by the White Sox, who have a working agreement with the Indianapolis Club.

"This has been one of the hardest things I've had to do in baseball," said Bush. "Andy is a good friend of mine, but he didn't turn out to be my style of manager. He took it real good and there's no hard feeling between us."

Cohen played under Bush when the latter managed Minneapolis in the mid 30s and the two became good friends. He was the immediate choice of Bush to succeed Kerby Farrell, who last winter was promoted to the managerial reins at Cleveland.

CHANGING OF MANAGERS EXPECTED

The firing of Cohen was not unexpected. There had been rumblings of displeasure in the Victory Field office and it also is known that the White Sox organization felt that the Indians should have finished better than sixth. Cohen's strategy at times also had been questioned by Indianapolis and league writers.

"This is the first time in my managerial career that I haven't been asked back for a second year," Cohen told The News today from Chicago, where he also attended the White Sox meeting.

"I feel in my own heart that I didn't do too bad the way things shaped up, but that's the way the ball bounces. I still feel friendly toward Bush and Indianapolis. The people there were very nice to me."

Cohen's reference to "the way things shaped up" pertained to the numerous injuries which hit the Indianapolis club, and also the sale of Ted Beard to the White Sox. Cohen insisted "to the end" that Beard meant the difference of the Indians finishing in the first or second division.

The sixth-place finish of the Tribe was not the first second-division rating for Cohen, but the final summary of 74 victories against 80 defeats marked the first time in his 12-year managerial career that he finished under .500.

"I have nothing in mind for the future," Cohen continued. "They want me back in Panama to manage a winter league team, but I think I'll pass that up and spend more time with my family. I'm going to El Paso today for a visit with my mother, and then I guess I'll just go job-hunting."

Cohen came to Indianapolis after two years at New Orleans.

Top Police Quizzed in Gun Death

Several high-ranking officers were "called on the carpet" today by a police inspector angered over a fatal shooting in a phony shoe shine parlor on Indiana Avenue.

Jesse Antle Hamler, 25, 2003 Ralston, was shot and killed at 7:45 a.m. after a scuffle in Bud's shine parlor, 519 Indiana. He was shot in the chest during an argument with Theophilus (Bud) Shirley, 46, 415 W. 31st, owner of the parlor.

Police found a quantity of liquor in a back room of the "shine parlor," but no shoe polish, brushes nor shine cloths. They said Shirley was a known bootlegger.

Acting Police Chief, Inspector Noel Jones, angered that Shirley had apparently been allowed to operate the parlor as a "front" for liquor sales, ordered the investigation and threatened possible suspensions of some officers.

OFFICERS GIVE NO COMMENT

Called into Jones' office for morning-long talks on what they knew about the situation were Inspectors William Hague and Carl Schmidt; Lts. Bernard Marks, Francis Dux and Orville Gleich, Capt. Clinton Auer and Sgt. Charles Sherman.

Neither they nor Jones would comment following the meeting.

Shirley said Hamner and another man came into the shine parlor and started an argument with him (Shirley) and Martha Thurman, 35, 633 Locke.

Shirley said he ran into a back room for a .22-caliber rifle as Miss Thurman hit one of the men over the head with a stick.

Police later picked up the other man, Harry Steele, 23, 1449 E. 16th, at his home. He was taken to headquarters for questioning.

After battering down the door to a back room, investigators found 75 half pints of whisky, four to five bottles of Scotch and a six-bottle pack of beer.

Shirley admitted that he had sold liquor on Sundays and after legal closing hours, police said.

Jones later said, "If this place was closed as it was supposed to be, this murder would never have happened."

Faubus' Charge About FBI Is Lie: Hoover

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover today said Governor Orval Faubus of Arkansas indulged in a falsehood in accusing the FBI of holding teen-agers in Little Rock incommunicado for hours of questioning.

The Governor, in a television address to the nation last night, said "teen-age girls have been taken by the FBI and held incommunicado for hours of questioning while their frantic parents knew nothing of their whereabouts."

Hoover today issued this statement:

"The statement of Governor Orval Faubus last night that FBI agents held teen-aged girls incommunicado for hours of questioning is as false as his recent statement that the FBI tapped his telephone.

"No teen-ager or anyone else has been held incommunicado by the FBI for hours of questioning.

"We, of course, have talked to students, including those whose names have been furnished by Governor Faubus' counsel, for the purpose of securing information with respect to possible violence.

"Had Governor Faubus been interested in securing the truth rather than disseminating falsehoods, a telephone call to the Little Rock office of the FBI or to me would have provided him with the facts."

Fewer Troops at School as All Is Calm

By United Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—The Army today reduced the force of paratroopers standing guard around Central High School.

Nine Negro children entered the school without incident for their third day of integrated classes.

Calm prevailed throughout Little Rock, and no crowds gathered near the school.

Federal agents, meanwhile, investigated Mayor Woodrow Mann's charge that a close friend of Governor Orval Faubus was a "principal agitator" last Monday's violence at the school.

The friend is James T. Karam. Mann made the charges in a telegram last Monday to Attorney General Herbert Brownell. FBI agents, it was learned, are checking out the charges.

Karam flatly denied Mann's charges. He said he went to Central Monday to check on the safety of his daughter, 14, and son, 16, and left them there when he was assured they were all right.

"My advice to Governor Faubus consists only in suggesting that he buy his wearing apparel from my (clothing) store," he said.

City Council Votes to Keep Fast Time

This Is a Clock?

If the time flase has left you groggy, a look at this clock will speed up the process. It's in the Circle tavern at 37 Monument Circle and the whole thing is backward from what you usually see in clocks. The woman with the confused look (like all of us) is Miss Joyce Anderson, 3063 Central.—The News Photo, Robert Lavelle.

Preference of People Clear, Boswell Says

Several thousand Indianapolis municipal employees will have two kinds of time starting Sunday. The City Council today refused to change its fast time position taken Wednesday.

The majority of Indianapolis and Marion County citizens will turn back their clocks at 2 a.m. Sunday and follow normal working schedules. City Hall and other municipal employees will have their clocks officially on Central standard time but will operate on fast time.

The Council, in a statement issued jointly with acting Mayor Charles Boswell, said:

"We are still of the opinion that the vast majority of the people of the city have enjoyed working for the last 2½ years on the earlier time schedule. We see no reason to change our statement of last Wednesday, September 25th."

That statement said City Hall clocks would be on slow time — as mandated by the 1957 time law — but that city offices would be open on what amounted to a fast time schedule starting Sunday.

CITY UNITS ON FAST TIME

It had been widely predicted that the Council would reverse its Wednesday action, and approve slow time. It did just the opposite.

The Council action means that the City Hall, all city offices, Police and Fire Departments will be operating on fast time.

On standard time will be the Statehouse and all state offices, all county offices, Indianapolis and Marion County schools, and federal offices.

Business and industry are expected to follow the lead of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, which voted yesterday to abide by the standard time law.

Mayor Philip L. Bayt, ill in his home, was unavailable for comment.

"So far as I know this (City Council action) will not change our stand," said William H. Book, executive vice-president of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce.

PICTURE SPOTTY OVER STATE

Governor Harold W. Handley, supporting the standard time law, said of the Council's decision:

"I still feel that uniformity is the only answer, and I'm sorry that the Council is taking this attitude."

Over the state, the time picture after 2 a.m. Sunday, when all communities are supposed to go on standard time, will be spotty.

In two sections, the Hammond to South Bend area in the north, and New Albany-Jeffersonville in the south, cities will stay on fast time until late October, when Chicago and Louisville change over.

A decision in Ft. Wayne to stay permanently on Eastern time brought a sharp retort from the Governor that "Ft. Wayne is in Indiana, not Ohio." He added Ft. Wayne was creating the confusion the legislature sought to avoid.

It remained highly doubtful that the state can withhold state funds from cities, counties or school districts that keep their clocks on slow time, but actually operate on fast. Attorney General Edwin K. Steers has ruled that so long as official clocks are on standard time, there is nothing illegal about adjustment of hours.

No Stickers for Special 16th Signs

Police extended an experimental program on 16th Street today with the announcement that violators of special parking restrictions are not being given stickers.

Complaints from residents in the 600 block of East 16th charged police posted "No Parking" signs on Monday and neglected to remove them.

Police said the plan was to prevent parking from 3 to 6 p.m. only and that motorists who park there at other hours will not be ticketed.

They said the signs were posted from West to Roosevelt.

At the same time, police said thus far there have been no arrests of motorists for blocking intersections on 16th.

Last week, police were ordered to arrest drivers who blocked intersections. Police explained today that policemen stationed at the intersections have not spotted any "flagrant" violators. A motorist who deliberately crowds into an intersection on the traffic light change and who thereby blocks it will be arrested, police said.

FIRES SET AT COLLEGE FOR NEGROES

By Associated Press

ALBANY, Ga.—Fire attributed to vandals did damage estimated at nearly $300,000 to the Albany State College for Negroes early today.

Firemen, police and school officials agreed that two or three persons were seen running from a building which flared up while the flames were destroying another. They differed whether the persons were white or Negro.

There seemed little doubt that the fire was incendiary.

"There was no question about that," said City Detective W. M. Harris. "It definitely was set."

Wiped out was the 1-story Hazard Training School, attended by some 250 Negro students and used by the college to train Negro teachers.

It was valued by W. H. Dennis, president of the state-supported college, at $250,000.

AUDITORIUM AND OFFICES BURN

While it was going up in flames, fire broke out in nearby Caroline Hall, housing the college auditorium and administration offices. Dennis said damage there was between $25,000 and $50,000.

Dennis, who attributed the fire to vandals, said he understood white youths were seen fleeing Caroline Hall.

But Harris declared that Fireman E. W. Peterson had a good look at the fleeing figures and they were Negroes.

Albany is a city of about 20,000 people 70 miles north of the Florida state line.

Herman Hoglebogle Says:

Hey, Bull Durham! Instead of disappearing around noon each day, why don't you see what you can do about getting that tree trimmed at 56th and Ind. 37. Just east of the intersection there's an overhanging branch that hides the traffic signal until you're right on top of it. I mentioned this dangerous situation last week for the second time. So far, nothing has been done.

Teamsters' Vote Blocked

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON—U.S. Judge F. Dickinson Letts today blocked next week's scheduled election of a new slate of officers by the International Teamster Union.

The judge granted a petition by a group of New York members of the union for a temporary injunction.

The petitioners had complained that their convention delegates have been picked improperly and the election stocked to bring about selection of James R. Hoffa as teamsters president.

Vienna Offices Urged for Atomic Agency

VIENNA (UP)—The preparatory commission of the International Atomic Agency has agreed to recommend Vienna as the agency's permanent headquarters, it was announced today.

The announcement was made after the commission completed its work for the agency's first General Assembly opening here October 1.

High School's Out

METUCHEN, N.J. (UP) — Officials moved today to provide classroom space for some 1,200 pupils displaced when a $1 million fire leveled most of Metuchen High School.

Push for Sales Tax, City Told

An urban planning and research organization recommended to Indianapolis today that it work for the replacement of the state gross income tax with a sales tax.

It also was recommended that with the sales tax, a "more equitable return of funds" should be made to the counties.

This would enable Indianapolis and Marion County, it was explained, to participate financially in the state highway program. Thus the community would have a voice in the matters of highway location.

The suggestion was one of several made by an Urban Land Institute panel of 10 men after a five-day on-the-spot study of the downtown district.

Also recommended in the survey reports:

1. Abolition of the 6c street and thoroughfare tax against real estate to be replaced by a vehicle tax against vehicles registered in the county.
2. One county-wide taxing unit with a unified system of tax assessments. This county-wide unit would replace nine separate tax units now in existence and the 10 separate elected tax assessors.
3. Aggressive support of proposed redevelopment programs and increased "downtown promotion" to combat declining downtown property values.
4. An eight-county planning conference to coordinate Marion County planning with that of neighboring counties.
5. Location of new interstate highways in such manner as to create new property values. This will be needed, it was explained, to offset an estimated $20 million loss in assessed valuation from Marion County tax rolls because of right-of-ways which will be purchased for the new highways.

Burgess in New Post

WASHINGTON (UP) — W. Randolph Burgess, former undersecretary of the Treasury, was sworn in yesterday as U.S. permanent representative on the North Atlantic Council. He succeeds George W. Perkins, who retired.

Let's Take a Trip to United Fund Agency

Let's go see where United Fund money is being spent. Not in faraway lands across the ocean, but here in Marion County.

Then you'll know, when you make your contribution, where your money will go and what it will do for the people who need it.

You can visit the agencies that receive money from the United Fund, learn how this money helps people in need, and then decide how much to give.

Just call ME 4-4311, the United Fund office. The folks there will arrange for you (or your club or office group) to pay a call on the agencies you're interested in.

A group of Eli Lilly & Co. employees is one such group. They visited the cerebral palsy clinic at Riley Hospital and the speech and hearing center in the English Foundation building on their tour.

There was no sales pitch for the United Fund and no extended hand at the end of the tour.

The visitors saw short movies of work at the clinic, then visited some of the treatment rooms to see how patients are handled.

At the speech and hearing center, the Lilly workers saw a kindergarten for deaf children in action. With earphones on their heads, the youngsters were hearing amplified sounds of farm animals. Their teacher held up models of the animals being heard from a recording, and spoke into a microphone the names of the animals.

The guide was an executive of the Girl Scouts—another United Fund agency doing its bit toward the campaign.

You can make such a visit to these or other agencies. Doing it will show those connected with the United Fund that you're interested in their work. And it will help you understand their job — and why they need your support.

MISTAKES CALLED BEST TEACHER

Wives Who Blow In Money Become Best Budgeteers

By FRANCES ANCKER
Women's News Service

HOUSTON, Tex.—How best can a husband teach his wife to manage the household budget?

"Turn her loose, hand over his salary—and let her blow all his money in!"

This amazing bit of advice, which ought to be peculiar with young housewives, comes from the nation's No. 1 accountant—Lee Ella Costello of Houston, the newly-elected president of the American Women's Society of Certified Public Accountants.

While the advice may sound a bit wild at first, the reason behind it has just as much common sense and down to earth logic as the fact that two and two make four.

A housewife, trying to budget, can learn only by doing, Miss Costello explains, saying, "She has to make mistakes, just like anyone else in the world who learns by trial and error. Only mistakes will teach her."

Too many modern husbands, Miss Costello believes, tend to "talk down" to their wives when it comes to financial affairs. If a man believes a woman knows nothing about money and doesn't trust her to handle it, he places her under a big financial handicap.

Then if he's out of the running for a while, and she has to move in and handle the family money, with no knowledge of how to do so, she's likely to go off the deep end and get the family into real money trouble.

Smart husbands, this CPA believes, let their wives in on a financial partnership while they are still young enough to learn about income and outgo.

What about that $30 for the crazy hat? The $100 for a new cocktail dress?

"Let the wife worry about that," says Miss Costello. "If she has to do all the household budget balancing, and that new hat or dress keeps her awake worrying for a few nights, she'll probably become as raggy as a penny bank with a missing key. And what better way to learn, than doing without because of extravagance?

Miss Costello admits that it is plenty hard for a young husband to sit by and watch his wife make financial blunders with the money he has worked hard to earn. "But better for her to learn while he's young and in a lower earning bracket than when he's older and it's too late," she says.

Accountants see many tragic cases in which wives, who should be living on a comfortable income after their husbands die, mismanage the funds and are left destitute at a time when money is most needed.

"I think the big trouble is that husbands tend to get out of patience too quickly," says Miss Costello. "Let a wife go into the red for one week, and her husband is likely to take over with a 'here-let-me-handle-this' attitude that gives her an inferiority complex."

As president of the women CPAs, Miss Costello belongs to a group of less than a thousand women. Why aren't there more women CPAs? "Because," she says, "women are still afraid of it, and I honestly don't know why."
