

YOUNG'S YARNS

The accidental death of George Ahlert, first baseman on the varsity baseball team at Normal early this morning came as a tremendous shock to the campus. He was a key man on the 1956 championship nine, batting .372 in the IAC and .284 for the entire season. Ahlert did not come out for the team in his freshman year but reported as a sophomore last March after Herb Kaufmann was graduated and from the first made good. He was not only a strong hitter but did an exceptional job of covering the initial corner for Coach Harold Frye, and his death will leave a gaping hole in the Cardinal infield next spring. Ahlert, a graduate of Granite City High school was one of three Granite City lads who played a prominent part in ISNU taking its third consecutive IAC crown in June.

Phil Hogan, No. 1 catcher and Norman Jenkins, second baseman are also Granite City products and Frye is banking heavily too in the spring on Andrew Angelous, a freshman pitcher from Granite who entered college here this fall. Don Wachter, a member of the football squad for four years is another Granite City lad prominent in ISNU athletics.

Naming of Andy Cohen to the managership of the Indianapolis American Association baseball club recalls the time when

Rogers Hornsby

Andy was the New York Giants' second baseman after the late John J. McGraw traded Rogers Hornsby to the Boston Braves. Andy got off to a fine start at the Polo Grounds and the New York newspapers each day printed the averages of Cohen and Hornsby. Early in the season Andy was a world beater at the plate.

Rogers' reaction was characteristic.

"I feel sorry for the poor kid," the Rajah said.

"It won't be fair to him to print these averages very long."

Cohen didn't last too long either just as Hornsby predicted, but he has proven a successful minor league manager.

"Best since Bump Elliott." That's the tagline Lyle Smith, sports editor of the Detroit Free-Press, gave Terry Barr, Michigan senior wingback after the Illinois game. Barr is a stranger at the post but was a standout against the Illini. The graduation of Tony Branoff left Bennie Oosterbaan without a wingback of high calibre and Bennie moved Barr to Bump's old post last week and the young man was a real ace in the hole against Ray Eliot's charges.
