

MANAGERIAL CHECKERS

Managerial brains began whirling. Andy Cohen, serving a one-night stand as Phils' pilot, called on Ted Lepcio to bat for Cardwell, but Chuck Dressen countered by calling in right-handed pitcher Bob Giggie as a sub for southpaw Pizarro.

Cohen then picked left-handed John Callison to bat for Lepcio and Dressen ordered Giggie to give an intentional pass and set up a possible double play.

Koppe took a strike and a ball, missed a swing, fouled one off and then lined a shot that bounced through shortstop Johnny Logan for a single as Del Greco scampered home with no play made on him.

It was a dramatic ending to a game that began most inauspiciously for the home side. Simmons retired leadoff batter Felix Mantilla in the opening inning, but walked Logan. Eddie Math-
