

Phils Catch Up With Face, Finally

Hoak has hit four of his 10 homers against the Phils and three of them were clouted at Forbes Field, all over the right-field screen . . . A moment of silence was observed in the seventh inning out of respect to the memory of Fred Clarke, former Pirate manager and Hall of Famer, who died yesterday.

Pirates have reeled off 26 double plays in the 15 game home stand and the second one last night brought the fans up cheering . . . Mahaffey tried to push a bunt past the onrushing Hoak and Hoak reached for it with his bare hand and with almost the same motion, flipped it to Dick Groat at second and he dealt it to Bill Mazeroski at first.

Roy Face had downed the Phils seven straight times since May 28, 1955, when he lost a game because Gene Freese failed to touch second base in the ninth inning with the winning run crossing the plate. The Phils came back on the field to win that one in the 10th inning . . . Frank Herrera fanned twice last night and now owns a new Philly record—102 strikeouts. He's within 36 of the major league mark held by Jim Lemon.

Jocko Conlan chased Coach Andy Cohen in the first inning and Ed Vargo ran Dick Schofield from the bench in the seventh.
