

GEE, THANKS A MILLION—That's Bill Mazeroski of the Pirates handing Sally her uniform and Andy Cohen, Phillies' acting manager, handing his baseball suit to Griff. The start of this presentation took place last winter when Griff was a patient in a Philadelphia hospital and some of the Phillies and Philadelphia Eagles used to visit him and take him toys to brighten the little lad's stay in the hospital. Sally and Griff will long remember the night of July 8, 1960, when they were the guests of the Phillies, and both are rooting harder than ever for their favorite teams.
