Herschleder Leaves El Paso Sun Kings

Fred Herschleder, business manager of the El Paso Sun Kings and former general manager of the club when it was owned by the California Angels, is leaving baseball for a job in the 6th Judicial District court clerk's office here.

Bob Morris, general manager of the Kings, made the announcement at a meeting of El Paso baseball supporters.

MORRIS SAID that the club will have no regular business manager during the coming season but will have Bob Redman to do bookkeeping. Herschleder will remain partly active with the club in an advisory capacity.

The co-chairmen of the steering committee of the Sun Kings, Jack Niland and Sal Berroteran, appointed coordinating committee chairmen at the Sun Kings' meeting. Niland himself will work with the Chamber of Commerce and city officials. Berroteran will coordinate activities with the Lulac, softball organizations and Juarez groups. Hawley Richeson will introduce political tie-ins and Andy Cohen will work with older baseball groups.

Hank Iba to Speak At Mt. Sinai Fete

Henry P. (Hank) Iba, Oklahoma State's famed basketball coach, will be the speaker at the Temple Mount Sinai's 8th Annual father-son sports award dinner to be held next Tuesday at Temple Mount Sinai.

Iba, who is retiring as Oklahoma State's athletic director and head basket coach after this season, has won two national championships and numerous conference titles. He's coached two winning U.S. Olympic teams.

THE DINNER will honor El Paso's Sportsman of the Year. Past winners are George Genovese, Don Haskins, George McCarty, Bobby Dobbs, Saul Kleinfeld, Andy Cohen and John Phelan. Other awards to sports figures will be announced.

The social hour will begin at 6:30 followed by a dinner. Men and boys tickets are on sale at Union-Fashion, Southwest National Bank, Mutual Federal Savings and Loan and by Temple Mt. Sinai Men's Club members.
