Vandenburg Sportsman of Year–

'Fastest Mouth' Is Silenced After Honor

For a man who uses a globe for a road atlas and has telephone bills bigger than Andy Cohen's whole baseball program, his speech had become somewhat impared today.

Coach Wayne Vandenburg, who is the University of Texas at El Paso cinder coach and considered by many of his colleagues as the "Fastest Mouth in the West" when it comes to recruiting, was silenced upon being named the Sportsman of the Year at the annual Sports Awards Banquet of Temple Mount Sinai Men's Club.

WHEN VANDENBURG went to accept his honor about the only thing the Miner coach could say was "thanks."

After the banquet the Miner coach said the great con man had been conned by his fellow coaches. He said: "I was told to try to bring someone else and be sure he was here. Eddie Mullens and the rest of the guys really conned me. I had no idea the award was coming."

This honor is added to a long list established by Vandenburg after a boycott threatend the end of his track program. Among those is the second NCAA title won by the school with the No. 1 finish of the cross country team last November. Also he won the Western Athletic Conference championship in cross country and the United States Track and Field Federation championship the day following the NCAA victory.

ALSO HONORED at the banquet were Nate (The Skate-Tiny) Archibald and New York Jets flanker Don Maynard. Archibald was chosen Amateur Athlete of the Year and Maynard the Pro Athlete of the Year.

Archibald was chosen for his unselfish leadership of the Miner basketball team the last three years. Since he became a starter three years ago he has led his team in scoring and assists and made every all-tournament team for every tournament he played in which one was chosen.

He was picked on two-All-America honorable mentions last year and is a candidate for All-America this year. He is second in all-time Miner scoring only to Jim (Bad News) Barnes, who had eight inches in height on the speedy playmaker.

His unselfishness came out when he accepted the award and his only concern was for his team and the city of El Paso. "We want everyone in El Paso to get behind the team in these last games and support us to the utmost," he said.

MAYNARD led in total yardage in pro football playing with the New York Jets.

Maynard also played for the U.T. El Paso Miners after transferring from Rice because he liked UTEP (Texas Western then) better.

FEATURED SPEAKER last night was Henry P. (Hank) Iba who talked in depth about need for better athletes at the Olympics. He said: "This can be achieved with three things, family, church and school. The athlete must combine this with dedication and self discipline."

Master of Ceremonies was Andy Cohen. The invocation was given by Rabbi Floyd Fierman.

BYU to Host NCAA Meet

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Two cities, Fort Worth and Provo, Utah, were named by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) as sites for first-round doubleheaders in the NCAA basketball tournament.

The first round of the Midwest Regional, pitting the Southwest Conference champion against three at-large teams, will be played on the Texas Christian University campus Saturday, March 7.

First-round games in the Western Regional, matching champions of the Big Sky and Western Athletic Conferences against two at-large teams, will be played at Brigham Young University on the same date.

It Could Be 1966 Again for Miners

By BOB INGRAM

It could be 1966 again for the U.T. El Paso Miners as far as competition with Arizona State is concerned.

The Miners during their NCAA championship season of 1966 defeated the Arizona State Sun Devils in Tempe 84-67.

It was a 17-point spread and was accomplished with comparative ease by the Miners.

BUT WHEN the return game was played with the Miners at Memorial gym that year, Don Haskins' crew managed to win by only two points 69 to 67.

It may be that close tomorrow night when the Miners face Arizona State at Tempe despite a 44-point bulge the UTEP crew had over the Sun Devils at the Coliseum on Jan. 17. The Miners romped to a 108-64 win in that game.

THE SUN DEVILS, despite a poor season and a poor Western Athletic Conference record, are expected to very unrelenting on their home court. They've just completed a three-game trip into Utah. They lost to the Utah Redskins, Brigham Young and Utah State but in each game they played solid basketball. Utah beat them by six points (97-81), Brigham Young won by 14 (107-93) and the 19th ranked Utah State Aggies managed a 10-point win (112-102).

Ned Wulk got big games from Seabern Hill, 6-2 guard who has a career record of 1402 points and is shooting for Joe Caldwell's school mark of 1515 points.

GERHARD SCHREUR, the Flying Dutchman who is 6-6 and weighs 230-pounds, is another big threat to the Miners. He gave them a rough time a year ago on the boards at the Coliseum.

The Miners will fly to Tempe tomorrow. Haskins is expected to start Nate Archibald, Ples Vann, Len Stewart, Mike Switzer and Bob Doyle in the game against ASU.

As the season wanes, Haskins is afraid the Miners may lose some of their jumping ability through fatigue. And the Miners, the shortest team in the WAC, need all the spring they can get to stay with ASU tomorrow night and with Arizona in Tuscon Saturday night.

Red Wings Get Back Rookie

DETROIT (UPI) —Al Karlander, a 23-year-old rookie center, will be back in the Detroit Red Wings' lineup last night after being out for four days with a leg injury.

Signs Coach
