

Knuckleball Tantalizes Miner 9

Coach Andy Cohen's U.T. El Paso Miner baseball team has found out how tantalizing a knuckleball can be.

Cohen's nine dropped the second game of a two game series to the Southern Colorado State Indians 8-1 yesterday behind the knuckleball pitching of Mike Burba.

"The whole story was Burba's pitching," Cohen said, "He threw that knuckleball which broke like a curve and held the boys tantalized throughout the game."

MARC BOMBARD was charged with the loss but threw a fine game before some costly pitches got him into trouble in the seventh inning.

Cohen said the Miners got only three hits and two of those came from Johnny Miller. Bob Propokowicz collected the other.

"We also made some costly fielding errors," Cohen said.

In today's outing with Colorado University, Jim Gregger-son got the starting nod.
