

Says Cohen—

'Miners Have Made Progress'

Andy Cohen's U.T. El Paso Miner baseballers are 12-12 as the Western Athletic Conference part of the schedule approaches. Andy, pointing his team toward the league foes, is satisfied the Miners have made progress and expects more improvement by the time Arizona comes to Dudley Field on April 10 and 11 for a three-game series.

The former big leaguer and veteran manager of professional clubs will send his Miners against New Mexico Highlands at Dudley Field Friday and Saturday.

"THE LEFT handed pitching has looked all right so far," Cohen said. "I am not pleased with the right handed pitching. I hope to get more balance in this department by the time our conference season opens."

Adolf Varela, one right hander, will be tested against New Mexico Highlands and Andy hopes he comes through.

Cohen was well pleased with Jim Gregerson, left hander who had not allowed an earned run in 25 innings until he faced Regis Saturday. Gregerson beat the Coloradoans 6-2 and had 14 strikeouts for a U.T. El Paso record.
