

Miners Are Last, But Gain Respect

Coach Andy Cohen's U. T. El Paso Miner baseball team might be in the cellar in the South Division of the Western Athletic Conference today, but they were more respected than ever.

Cohen's team had shown how explosive they could be in unloading nine runs in one inning against the Arizona State Sun Devils at Phoenix.

This was the first game of a doubleheader which the Miners won 11-1, but dropped the second 7-2.

BRIAN HARPER led the Miner rout in the fourth inning of the first game. Harper hit a bases loaded double to score three RBI's and then come back with a single in the same inning to score two more.

Added to this were six more Miner hits, four walks and an ASU miscue.

After the game ASU coach Bobby Winkles said to Cohen, "what did you feed those boys?"

IN THAT GAME Marc Bombard recorded what Cohen called the finest game of his career. "The game Bombard threw was a masterpiece," said Cohen. "He mixed his speeds well and kept all his batters off balance."

Also in that game pitcher Harry Milner turned outfielder and hit a homer and two singles.

In the second game Ken Hanson defused the Miner bats and struck out 15. But Milner had his own fine performance striking out 13.

"Milner had a fine game, he just ran out of gas in the last inning," said Cohen.

This week Cohen takes his team back to Arizona for a three game series with Arizona.
