N.M. Hopes For W.A.C. Title Piece

University of New Mexico brings its Wolfpack to Dudley Field tomorrow for a three game Western Athletic Conference stand with the U.T. El Paso Miner baseball team.

This is the last trip of the season for the Lobos and it could mean a piece of the WAC title for them. New Mexico dropped into a second place tie with Arizona last week after losing the series to Arizona State.

THE MINERS on the other hand, are hot under the collar from a three game shellacking they took from the Wildcats. Coach Andy Cohen has had his Miner team working on fundamentals all week.

One thing both head coaches have in common is neither knows who will pitch which games. But both know who their starters will be. For UTEP Cohen will go with his lefties Marc Bombard, Harry Milner and Jim Greggerson. Lobo coach Bob Leigh will go with Jim Kremmel, Gary Jacobs and Dan Ketcherside.

THIS IS THE SECOND time the two have met this year, although it's only the first in WAC competition. In the first the Miners took the best two out of three series, winning the first two and dropping the finale.

Leading the Lobo hitters is Larry Minarsich, who is swinging at a .398 clip. Minarsich also leads the team in RBI's with 27. He followed by Bob Faford at .348 and Ken Johnson at .333.

Game time for the opener tomorrow will be 2 p.m. and for twin bill Saturday 1 p.m.

The Miners are currently 2-7 in the WAC while the Lobos are 5-4.
