Minermen Look For 4th, 5th

Coach Andy Cohen's U.T. El Paso baseball team gets to help New Mexico State finish its season with a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m. tomorrow at either Dudley or Hugo Meyer Field.

Cohen's Miners will be looking for their fourth and fifth straight wins after coming off a series sweep over the New Mexico Lobos 10-8, 7-2 and 5-3.

THIS IS THE FIRST Western Athletic Conference sweep for the Miners and also the first doubleheader sweep in the WAC.

The series sweep was a big blow to New Mexico's chances of winning the WAC. The Lobos had strong title hopes before the series here.

In the first game of Saturday's twinbill, Harry Milner recorded what Cohen termed a masterpiece. "His fastball, curve and screwball were working exceptionall," said the Miner mentor.

"He also got good fielding and hitting behind him," Cohen added.

Jim Greggerson pitched the second game and was cool despite wildness at times. "He got into trouble, but was able pitch himself out of it," said Cohen.

COHEN PRAISED the work of Rick Butler through the series and especially the last game.

Leading the Miners in hitting were Bob Prokopowicz who went 6-11 for the three games and Juan Sandoval who was 7-13 in the sweep.

One big thing that was favorable to the Miners in the last game was two costly errors by the Lobos when the Miners had their big inning.

WHEN THE MINERS meet the Aggies tomorrow they will face some young pitching.

New Mexico State has been hampered by the loss of Mitch Seales to injuries. Sophomore Weldon Langley has had to pick up much of the slack.

Leading the Aggie hitters is center fielder Rex Gates who is hitting right at the .400 mark. He also has nine homers.
